Mariner's Log

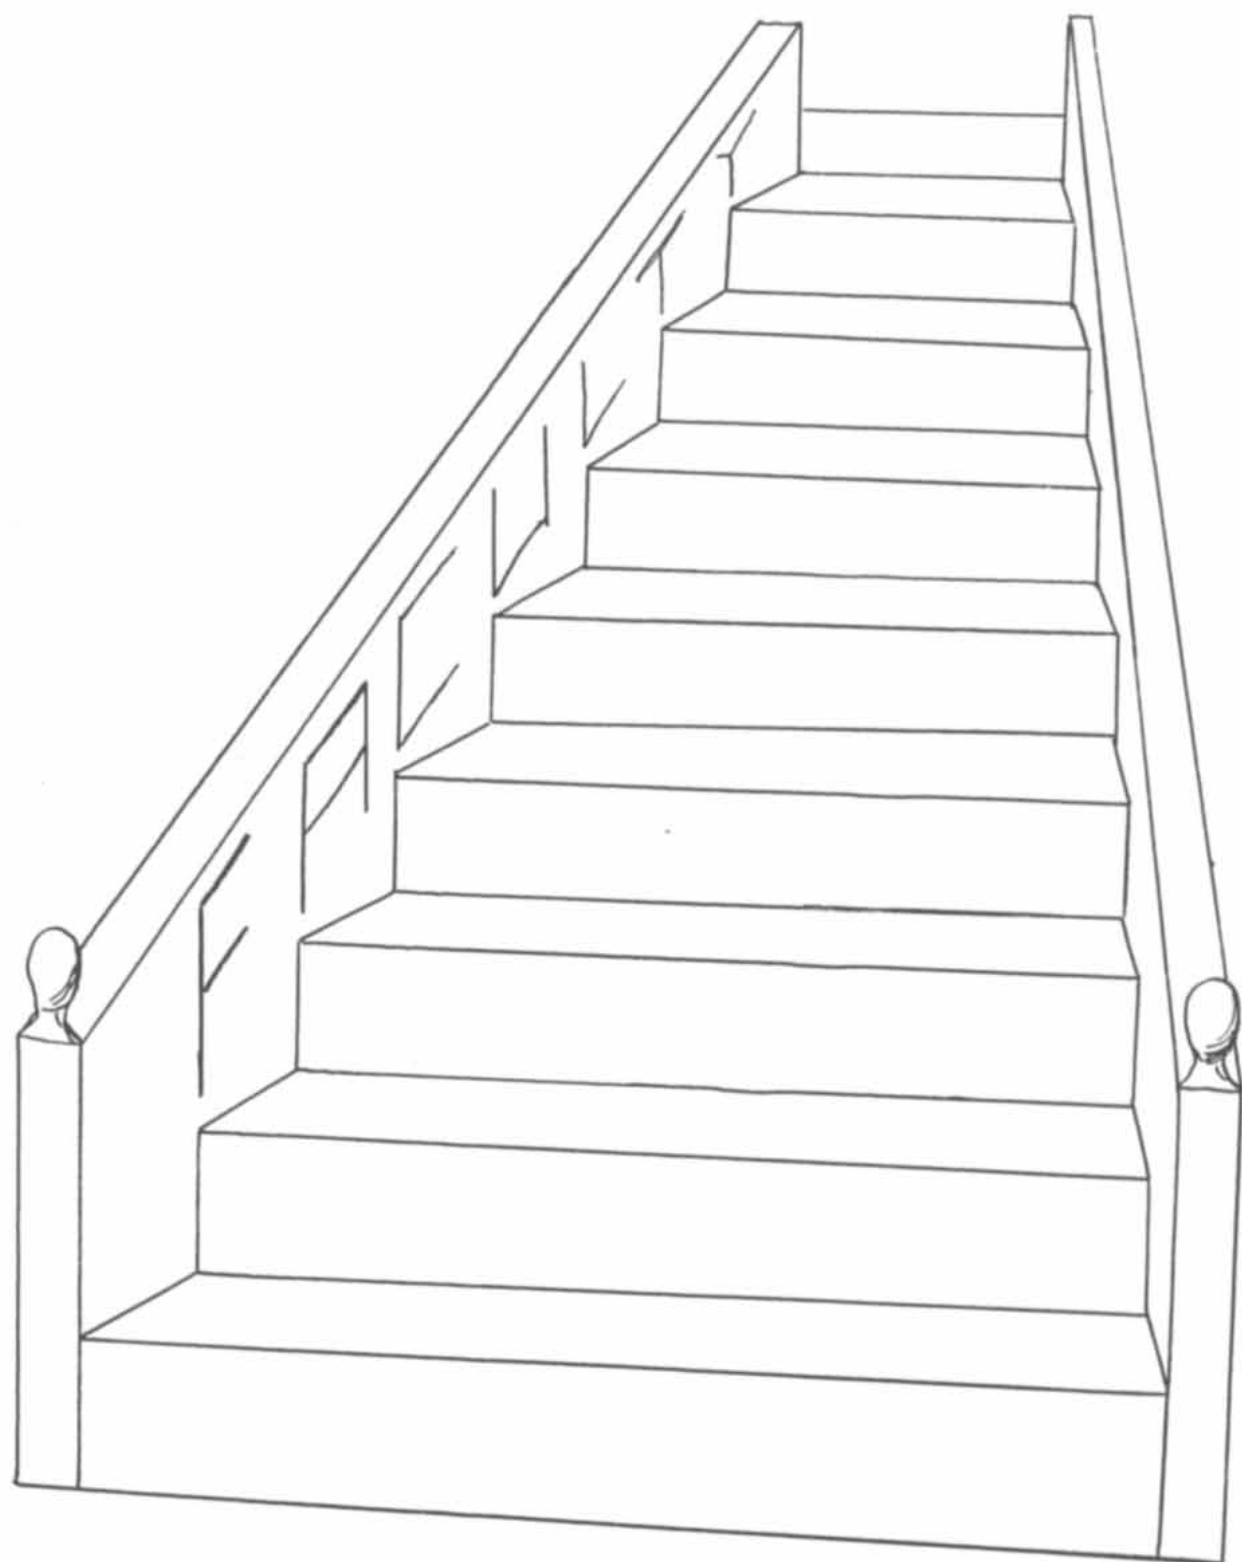

1960

We, the Staff of the 1960 MARINER'S LOG, have chosen the "Stairway to Success" as the theme for this year's Annual. Often times it seems to us that it is an endless climb to the top; but to those of us who are nearing or have finally reached the top, it seems that it has taken us only a few short years to attain our goal.

We, the Staff of the 1960 MARINER'S LOG, are proud to dedicate this Yearbook to the Teenagers of Tomorrow. It is our desire that they will remember the academic as well as the social rewards during their school years. It is also our hope that each of these Teenagers of Tomorrow will know that their school will be what they make it.

This staircase is being held together by the banister--just as our school is being held together by our Faculty. As we climb toward the top, we often times have to lean on this banister for support.

Mr. Hill has devoted much energy for the benefit of both students and teachers of the Homer School. Under his leadership, our opportunities for success in the future years have been heightened by his influence.

William Wilttrout
Principal of High School

As High School Principal and Coach, Mr. Wilttrout has worked far beyond the call of duty for every student of the Homer High School. His warm smile, his assistance in time of need, and his encouragement of school spirit have commanded the respect of each of us.

Only those who are graduating know how much one really benefits from the twelve short years spent striving to reach the top. Each senior has a fear in his heart of what lies ahead, yet each one is anxious to find what lies beyond.

Class Will

We, the noble Senior Class of the year of our Lord One Thousand Nine Hundred and Sixty, of the Homer High School, the City of Homer, State of Alaska, being a class of honor roll students, famed basketball players, and other talents of great potential, do hereby make, publish, and declare this to be our last Will and Testament, hereby revoking any Will or Wills heretofore made by us.

To the Juniors we will any debts, pom-pom sticks, and the box of goodies we inherited from last year's Seniors.

To the Sophomores our outstanding basketball players.

To the Freshmen our ability to get along with school officials.

We, the unforgettable Seniors, being of sane mind and sound body make these our individual last Wills and Testaments:

I, Carole Edlund, bequeath the following to my dear sister, Beverly: my ability to eat and my attraction to Ohlson Mountain.

I, Homer Herndon, bequeath the following to anybody who wants it: Homer High School.

I, Bill Hollis, bequeath my ability to be one minute late to Bruce McDowell.

I, Mairiis Kilcher, bequeath my striped red sweater to Lee Clendenen with the hope that it will not be as baggy on him as it was on me.

I, Steven Leffel, bequeath all the old lunch sacks in my locker to J. C. Ragan, my "amorous" for Janie Ragan, and my basketball shoes to Lance.

I, Irma Lindstrom, bequeath to Priscilla Smith the pleasure of getting ads for the annual and newspaper and the knack of chewing gum in class without getting caught.

I, Lynda Ragan, bequeath the following: To Jerry Wieber I will my future years, and to Judy Kramer my southern accent.

I, Rene' Richardson, bequeath to Priscilla Smith my ability to collect miscellaneous pictures and goodies for a scrapbook.

I, Ray Sanders, bequeath to Grant Wilson all my old papers and junk.

I, Bill Smith, bequeath to Jim Graham the old bottles that were left to me last year.

I, Jean Wickersham, bequeath to J. C. Ragan my locker with the hope that he will have a better locker partner than I had.

I, Twila Wilson, bequeath to Ruby Williams my passion for certain cars, and to Fay and Wurtila Kilcher my love for dimples.

Senior Class Prophecy

THE TIME: 1980. THE PLACE: Homer, Alaska. THE OCCASION: The grand opening of Homer as a world capital. This is the first time in history that the world has been united under one government. People from all over the world have come to witness this event.

Homer is almost unrecognizable to me--not a tree on Pioneer Avenue. Congested with traffic, it is now a city of 100,000.

I have been for the past few years exploring the far reaches of outer space and am amazed at the change wrought. I tap the shoulder of the taxi driver, and the beaming face of Bill Smith, not changed at all, confronts me. Proudly he tells me that he has a fleet of 1960 jalopies, and is the proud father of 13, a baker's dozen.

Bill garrulously points out things of interest as we wind up the rear of the parade. To the left of us, across from the old Post Office, is the modernistic Rene's House of Fine Drugs (drugstore to you) and there, dispensing drugs at a fine rate, is Rene' Richardson herself. She is crowned by a masterpiece of curls--the "Saturn Pompadour." This strange somewhat appealing hair-do is the handiwork of Irma Lindstrom, whose outer space hair-dos defy description.

Bill's car brakes abruptly. Ahead of us is the new 1981 Continental, and imposing in his cutaway, bowing to the crowds as he returns in honor to his home town, is World Representative, Bill Hollis. It was through Bill that Homer was chosen World's capital. Beside him is another honored guest, Lynda Ragan, who has won world-wide fame and fortune as Paris' leading designer of Arctic wear. Her fine parkas and mukluks are "musts" for the well-dressed woman of the world.

We are now approaching the Supreme President's Mansion. It looms imposingly in the location of the old Homer High School.

Tipping Billy Smith and thanking him, I make my way to the World's White House where I am smilingly greeted by none other than Ray Sanders, retired oil millionaire, whose homestead yielded him a fortune. He proudly informs me that he has never worked a day in his life.

I am at a loss. Where is the president? I stare in amazement at the interior of the mansion. It is all in pink with red velvet drapes. I am seated at the far end of a 100-foot table and there, in an imposing chair and draped in a beautiful robe of the three world's colors, is Jeanne Wickersham, the first woman president. (Did someone say the last?)

An honored guest at the reception is Twila Wilson who has just returned from an exhausting missionary call to the South Pole. Twila's next project is a book, SOUTH POLE PENGUINS VS. NORTH POLE PENGUINS.

To my left, I am pleased to find Carol Edlund who informs me that she is married to the Chief in Command of Alaska's Air Force and is a member of the World's Women Reserves herself.

We are served a most delicious Pizza Pie dinner by the world renown chef and dishwasher, Homer Herndon. Homer has closed his Pizzeria for the day to cook and serve for this gala occasion.

The evening is long and full of dry speeches; one after the other rise to speak. Jeanne Wickersham never could insult anyone and it looks as though everyone is getting into the act. In the midst of a long fillibuster by "Ole Bill Hollis," I fall asleep and am awakened by the sound of my name: "And now introducing Steve Leffel," at which I stagger to my feet and deliver for the thousandth time, my speech on the 'Exploration of Outer Space'." The eyes of my listeners are glazed, and at this moment of extreme boredom the highlights of the day draw to a close.

Senior Class Officers

It is interesting to note what part fate has played to bring together eleven people who compose the 1960 graduating Seniors of the Homer High School.

Of the eleven members of the class, only two--Irma Lindstrom and Homer Herndon--can claim Alaska as their home state. The others have migrated to Alaska with their families. Among these, one was born in Michigan, one in Washington, two in Idaho, two in Oregon, one in Texas, and two in California.

Homer Herndon is the only class member who has spent his entire school life in the Homer School; but Bill Hollis, Irma Lindstrom, Jean Wickersham, and Bill Smith have attended Homer High School for four years as well as the Homer Grade School for part of the time.

Three members of the class were newcomers to the state for their Senior year.

The Junior Class carried on a number of projects to earn money to finance the Junior-Senior Banquet and Prom which was held in the High School Gymnasium on April 22. In October magazine subscriptions were sold for the Curtis Publishing Company. Throughout the year the class had a concession stand at the basketball games. In January Homer Winter Carnival buttons were sold on a commission basis.

During the 1959-1960 school year the Freshmen Class held a dance, had a Christmas party, and took a field trip to the Ohlson Mountain Radar Station near Homer. The Whittier basketball team was here during our dance and contributed much to help make it a success.

FIRST ROW: Judy Kramer, Jerry Wieber, Jeanne Wickersham, Twila Wilson

During the year 1959-1960 the Homer High School Student Council has been active in a number of projects. In October of the school year, seven of the eight Student Council members and their advisor, Mr. Wilttrout, attended the Student Council Convention at Palmer.

Upon return the Student Council, along with some of the staff members, helped in the election of cheerleaders for the high school.

The main project of the Council this year has been sending to other schools for handbooks and writing articles for a student handbook for Homer. Some of the articles which have been completed will be typed up and mimeographed over the summer and will be distributed to the students next year until the finished handbook is published.

The Student Council sponsored a dance this year, made all the "Welcome" signs for the basketball games, and have learned how to conduct meetings according to parliamentary procedure.

In addition to these accomplishments, the Student Council has held regular meetings in which they discuss school problems and activities.

This year the Homemaking II class received instruction, for the first time, in home nursing by Mrs. Seppi.

The class of seven girls learned the procedures for making home nursing equipment. The class included a first-aid course, which, when completed, entitled each girl to become a qualified home nurse. The class also studied precautions for atomic warfare.

The first picture shows Mrs. Seppi demonstrating to students how to make the patient comfortable.

Then you see Twila and Ruby demonstrating to the class how to change a bed with the patient in it.

In the last picture Mrs. Seppi demonstrates the process of bathing a helpless patient.

It is believed that this course will be offered again in the future.

The Cafeteria

Mrs. Helen Perk, assistant, Mrs. Ethel Calkins, cook

The school cafeteria is managed by a cook and one helper. Meals served include fresh produce, home-made bread and rolls, and, for the first year, fresh milk. In preparing the meals, our cook tries to please the majority of students.

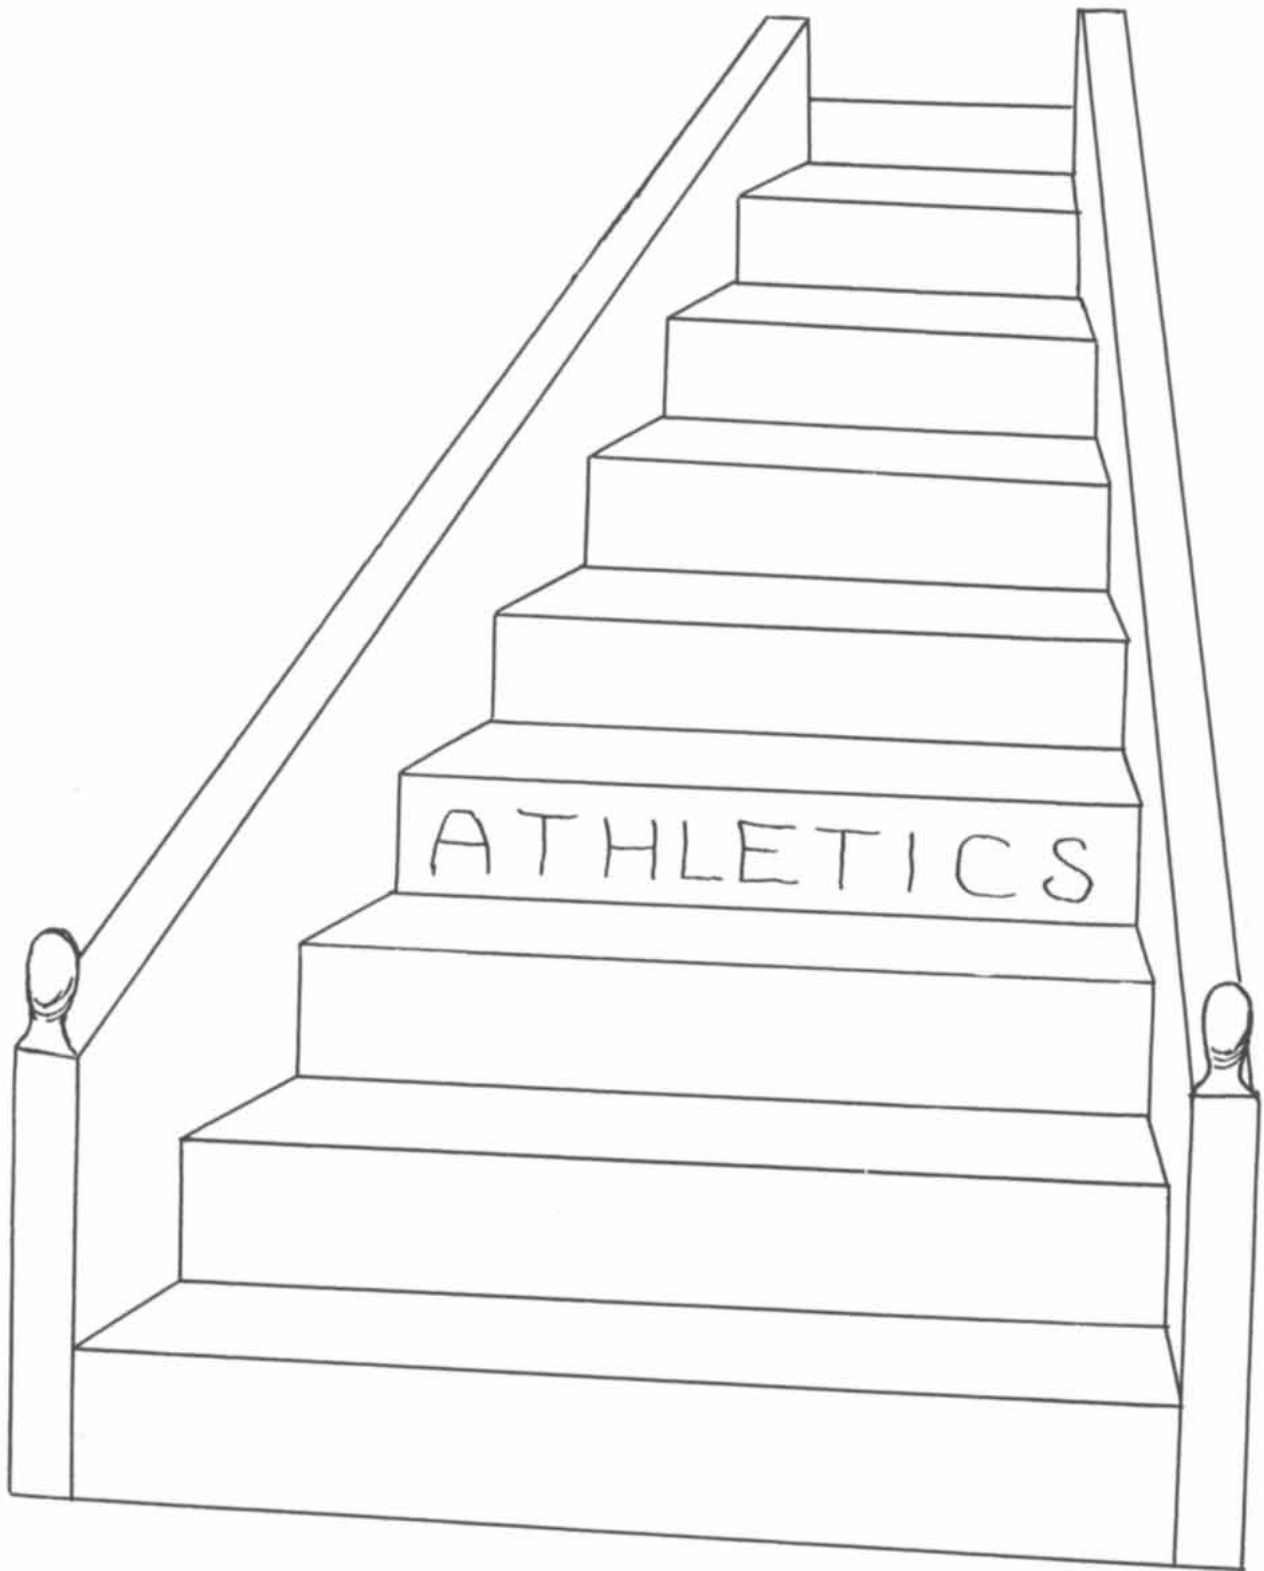

The cafeteria serves on an average of 165 to 170 meals a day. Those students who help in the cafeteria to punch tickets and to clean trays receive free meals for their work.

Athletics is a step in our school life which offers fun and enjoyment, and yet requires much practice and work. This step prepares each individual student to understand the value of sportsmanship and to become a more physically fit citizen for the future.

GAMES

These pictures were taken at the Western Kenai Peninsula Class C Basketball Tournament which was held in Homer on February 12-13.

Visiting teams included Seldovia, Wasilla, and Whittier.

Dave Sanders and Bill Bishop led the Mariners in the Tournament games, and were selected as part of the district team.

Below is a scoreboard of games played this year by the Mariners. With 15 wins and only 9 losses, Homer has a right to be proud of this team.

KACHEMAK JUNIOR SKI CLUB

The Kachemak Junior Ski Club, consisting of the 7th and 8th Grades and High School, has been very active this year. The team placed high in the competition with Juneau and Anchorage.

The president of the Club, Woody McLay, who took most of the honors, placed first in most downhill and slalom races during the Fur Rendezvous and Mt. Alayeska events. He stacked up a total of five "1st" awards and one "3d" award. He was chosen to represent Alaska as a junior skier at Sun Valley, Idaho, in February, where he placed "6th" in the slalom and "24th" in the giant slalom.

Glenn Carroll also did fine work in the cross-country races, placing "1st". David Christy, Bobby Moss, Don Bellamy, and Lee Martin have added to the honors.

Dave Christy is vice-president of the Club; Glenn Carroll is secretary, and Bobby Moss, treasurer. Mr. Vanderbrink Mr. McLay, Mr. Ross and Mr. Gjosund were the skiing instructors on Friday afternoons when the team practiced at the ski tow.

The time and patience of these instructors, the encouragement of Mr. Wiltrout, and the efforts and team spirit of each junior skier have combined to make the Kachemak Junior Ski Club a worth-while team.

Spending a few minutes together between classes, studying with one another for tests, meeting for a coke after school--these are the things which add to our school life. It is the time we spend with our friends, working and playing, that compose the happy and gay school lives that we lead as typical teenagers.
